

New Head of Compliance and Internal Audit for Lowell Group

Lowell Group, the Leeds-based debt purchasing specialist, has appointed Sam Marsden as its new Head of Compliance and Internal Audit.

Sam has 10 years experience in financial services with GE Money UKU across a broad range of areas, including risk management, internal audit and debt collection.

Reporting to Director of Compliance Bob Collins, Sam will be responsible for the day-to-day management of the company's dedicated quality monitoring and internal audit units, which are responsible for ensuring that Lowell operates within all relevant industry regulations and guidelines, and that the company and its staff adhere to all internal procedures.

Commenting on her appointment, Bob Collins said: "Sam's broad experience in financial services and in particular her involvement in enterprise risk management will stand her in good stead as she has a key role to play in ensuring Lowell maintains the highest operating standards in the business."