

Lowell directors prepare to tackle Three Peaks Challenge

Lowell Group's CEO James Cornell and Director of IT John Stewart are looking to raise money for the charity WaterAid by completing the 24 hour Three Peaks Challenge.

Over the weekend of June 20 and 21 they will be swapping their suits for heavy walking boots and attempting to climb Ben Nevis in Scotland, the Lake District's Scafell Pike and Snowdon in Wales – all within 24 hours.

As well as scaling the three highest mountains in England, Scotland and Wales, the gruelling challenge entails travelling around 450 miles. Fortunately, a dedicated support team – wives Linzi and Paula – will be on hand to drive and administer TLC as required!

James Cornell said: "It's a personal challenge but we wanted to do something for charity at the same time.

Wateraid is an international charity which aims to provide the world's poorest people with access to safe water, sanitation and hygiene education.

The Lowell duo has already been pledged more than £500 but they are hoping to raise at least £2,000 for Wateraid.

Anyone wishing to support their efforts can make a donation easily and securely by visiting <http://www.justgiving.com/threepeaksmadness>